Roxbury High School RAKU 2015-16

Steve Jaskowak, Master Potter
Ceramic Studio Manager Montclair Art Museum

The 3 day workshop is run by Steve Jaskowak, Master Potter from Montclair Art Museum. Here Steve demonstrates wheel throwing techniques to entry level ceramics students.

The students' focus at the beginning of Ceramics III is to produce work for the raku fire

The artist demonstrates several advanced techniques and then students prepare their own ware for the firing.

They dip and pour glaze or apply slip resist

Safety First!

The raku process is explained in detail and students are instructed of their participation and responsibilities. The focus is always on safety.

There is excitement with every firing. Students analyze results and admire each other's work.

The Blackwell Street High School Student Art Show

is one which we look forward to all year. It gives students and teachers the opportunity to submit their best artwork which is judged by a panel of artists from the Blackwell Street Center for the Arts. Works which are selected for the show are on display at the Atrium Gallery in Morristown through the month of April. At the opening reception on April 1st, ribbons were awarded for various categories. Students, friends, parents and teachers attended to celebrate the talent and achievements of all who participated.
